

Survey update

Finding out about activities for people with learning disabilities in Camden

Presented by Sal Bryant

How people find information about activities

In January 2025, people who attend Planning Together took part in a survey.

The survey was to tell Camden Council how people find information about activities.

Ten people took part in the survey.

What people said

- We want the 4 main places to find information about activities to be:

- Greenwood
- CLDS
- local community centres
- and libraries

- Most of us do not think it's hard to find information online.

- But 3 people thought it was hard or sometimes hard.

What people said

It's hard to find information because:

- it's not always clearly written

- it's not up to date

- it's set up in a way that works for providers but not for people using services

What people said

- I like to do exercises. I would like to know more these activities.

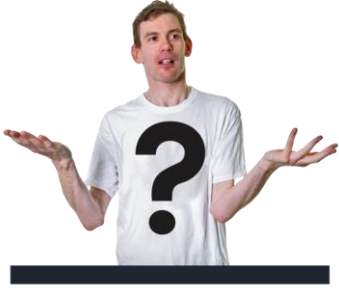

- The booking information for activities could be written in a more easy way.

- Have leaflets and flyers.

What people said

- Activities and services on offer are always changing, and it's hard to know what's starting or ending.

- It's knowing what websites to look at.

Next steps

- We will speak to Greenwood, CLDS, local community centres and libraries about how we share information and leaflets

- We will make sure the wikis on the cldsinfo.net website are up to date. These wikis are also linked to Camden Care Choices

- We will update you at the next Planning Together

- Please let us know if you have any more feedback
